RG Revved for Growth

Fractional Chief Revenue Officer for founder-led B2B. I fix the reason your company isn't hitting its number.

Owners usually call me when

- "We're busier than ever and the number still misses."
- "The deals we count on keep slipping to next quarter."
- "Our best customers haven't bought anything new in years."
- "Nobody trusts the forecast. Including me."
- "I'm still in every deal that matters."

How I work

I take ownership of the revenue engine. I don't hand over a deck of suggestions and leave. I start inside your business: where revenue actually comes from, where it leaks, and what changed when growth flattened. And I stay until the engine runs on your people, not on me.

WIN	KEEP	GROW
How you find and close new customers: the pipeline, the process, who closes.	How you hold them: delivery that matches the promise, renewals nobody has to chase.	How you grow the customers you already have: the expansion plan, on purpose and on the calendar.

One engine, three jobs. Every miss I've seen traces back to one of the three; the diagnosis says which.

The owner that fits

- Founder-led or family-owned B2B, roughly $5M to $15M in revenue.
- Growth slowing, or stopped, despite new people, new tactics, new tools.
- You want the number fixed and the engine handed back running, not a retainer that never ends.

The record

205%	60–80%	18→64%	100%
of the engagement target, on average	of growth from customers they already had	improved close rate on marketing leads	of engines still growing after hand-off

Averages across engagements. Two decades running revenue as CRO, VP Sales, and VP Operations, all of it inside founder-led companies. Two companies co-founded, both exited.

What happens next

A conversation. If it makes sense, the next step is a look under the hood: a fixed-fee diagnostic of your revenue engine, 2 to 3 weeks. You get the findings and what I'd do about them, either way. Then you choose: run the plan yourself or have me execute it and hand back a running engine. Or stop there. No obligation.
